To the family of Edelmira Cowley. I am sorry for your loss. Losing anyone in death is not an easy part of life. My hopes are that you will be able to find comfort from each other. On the hard days, try to lean on God for comfort as well. God is a truly loving God, and he wants to be there for us during difficult times like these. 2 Corinthians 1:4 shows us that God really does care. Also, there are two more very comforting scriptures which may have already been shared to you by others. John 5:28 and Revelation 21:4. These speak of the days when God, through Jesus will do away with this awful enemy of ours, Death; and when we may have the opportunity to see our loved once once again who have fallen asleep in death. My condolences to you and your family. Sincerely, Ali

May God be of comfort to you during this difficult time. In addition to prayers, you can also see his kindness expressed to us through the Bible. The day is coming soon when Jesus will do miraculous things for us on earth. Two wonderful scriptures which may help you cope during this difficult time is John 5:28,29 and Revelation 21:3,4. When you have a chance, I encourage you to read them both. These scriptures tell us Jesus will bring back to life those who have lost their lives and are in the memorial tombs! Then, we will never have to loose loved ones again, death will be wiped away. May this time come quickly. The pain of loss is never easy. Entreat God, and he will comfort you. My prayers go out for your family.
